STUDY SPA MANAGEMENT IN ENGLAND

Visiting a spa is still a very popular relaxation and leisure activity in central Europe. Now you can study Spa Management at Derby University and gain an honours top-up degree in one year. Derby is one of only two institutions in England offering this course, so if you are currently studying Spa management (or a related course) and you will have completed at least two years successfully by Summer 2009, you may apply. Students study at the historic and beautiful town of Buxton, high in the Derbyshire Peak District. The facilities are superb, the buildings are historic and the town is charming. In fact, the perfect place to study!

100 UP!

Our latest student information leaflet now contains 100 courses available for study in England – and there are even more courses available if you check out the prospectus issued by each university. If you cannot find the course you want, let us know. We may be able to help.

THE TIMETABLE

In England we tend to teach in a rather different way to many countries in Europe:

Only 5-6 subjects studied in the year

12-14 hours a week in the classroom

Additional time spent in research in well-equipped libraries

Teaching starts in September and finishes in April. Examinations are in May.
